Notes on the Enos Carter Home:

This home was located west and north of the present Murdock Dam, west of the Heber Creeper Tracks and Provo River.

It was built by Enos Carter and made of field stone, and was two stories high

There were _____ springs to the north of the home which supplied water for this home.

About _____ 19__ this home was purchased by Hyrum Heiselt, who made it into a hotel..and he and his wife lived there too.

He He Dug two fish ponds to the north of the hotel and kept fish in them. The water for the ponds was supplied by the two springs and some water diverted out of the Provo River.

The Heiselt Hotel became a favorite stopping place for patrons of the Heber Creeper to come and have a nice fresh fish dinner with other home-made trimmings on Sundays, holidays or other festive times.

See one nice picture of the hotel, and another enlarged postal card picture of a gathering of people at one of those home-made meals. The nice picture was provided by Max Jones and wife, while the other belongs to Ida Rasband Watkins and supplied by her daughter, Teenie! Watkins Barker of Heber City, Utah. Max was a building Contractor of Provo and related by marriage to the Heiselts.

See also a nice picture of Hyrum and Mrs Heiselt provided by the Joneses..

There is another picture from the book: "It Happened in Orem" which is labeled the Heiselt Hotel, but this building appears different from this more recent find. It could be the Pony Steel home as shown in the Orem book.
